Dedication

Ahead are the children of the next generation. We are to carry to them the Spirit of America. We must show them what went before, what lies ahead. We must lead them to seek through the dimness of centuries, a glowing line of silver white. It is the line of the Crusaders, steady, strong, and strong the quest for the Holy Grail, the search for Freedom.

Back there, glimmering faintly in the dawn of history, stand the gods, their very names lost in the long ago.

There are the prophets, and the teachers, and the lawgivers, a mighty host.

There is Moses, and those who followed him out of bondage.

There is Christ.

There the line brightens and broadens. We are nearer. We can see some of the faces. There are Columbus, Washington, Lafayette, Garibaldi.

There is Lincoln.

There is Roosevelt.

There are the countless hosts who fought on the world's battlefields. We know them well.

The light streams from their faces. Their helmets gleam. Their swords flash fire. A fearless, dauntless, invincible army, they march on and on and on to the fullness of Freedom. They live.

They are with us, children of America. They urge us on. They command us to go forward.

Man has slaved through the ages that we might be free. He has battled that we might have justice. He has studied that we might know. He has left us the heritage of the ages that we in our time might carry it on.

Ahead of us are the children of the next generation. It is for them that we live. It is for them that we must go on.

We are the torchbearers of Liberty. We, too, must take our place in the search for Freedom, the Quest for the Holy Grail.

It is for this, we the children of America were born.

— Angelo Patri

*Deep in the hearts of Americans
Lies the heart of our nation.
The groundwork of democracy,
The country's broad foundation*

—Armina Mitchell

Democracy today is in transition. It is meeting the challenge of an ever-changing world. For a century and a half it has successfully met the adjustments demanded by the altering conditions of progress. What changes have been made in democracy have been made on the face of it. They may be compared to the kind of change found in the geological record of the earth. When the general characteristics of a species were no longer adequate specialized features were developed and always the adaptation was based on the fundamental structure of the organism. So it is in a democracy. Any adjustments to changing conditions are based upon the invincible network of ideals which have become the bulwark of freedom.

Education is perhaps the greatest foundation for the most satisfactory expression of liberty and self-government. It is for this reason that we have chosen this year to lay emphasis upon the responsibility of the school as a basic institution in the moulding of capable citizens.

Deserving of our sincerest thanks for their fine cooperation in the publication of the Powder Horn are: Mr. O. W. Bodie yearbook photographer; Mr. Bruce Cowan Pontiac Engraving Company; Mr. Charles DeLaney printer. In appreciation for the contributions which have made possible the fuller expression of our theme we extend acknowledgement to: Herb McLaughlin Hammond Times photographer; Mauri Erdmann, photographer of Hammond Camera Club; Angelo Patri for his permission to use the "Spirit of America."

Wherein we recognize the influence of the school and teacher on the development of the dormant interests of the individual.

DIVISION II "We, the People"

Wherein we recognize that the school is a vibrant factor only when it is comprised of students who take every advantage of the opportunities afforded by the school.

DIVISION III "Freedom of Expression"

Wherein we recognize the many channels of interest through which students may develop their own talents in organizations with those who enjoy the same interests.

DIVISION IV "Establishment of New Frontiers"

Wherein we recognize the pioneering spirit of our athletic organizations as they push on to new frontiers in quest of greater laurels for their school.

DIVISION V "Fruits of Our Labors"

Wherein we recognize the values of student cooperation toward the completion of projects based upon their interests.

School

An integral part of the governmental plan, the American school system has no flavor of charity. Instead of being a boon of the government to the people, it is a product of the people, belonging to them for their own and the nation's upbuilding. The American school system has often been characterized as "organic." The history of American education began with the history of the country. Schools sprang up with each new settlement. With the progress of American civilization, the school has remained a flexible institution, leaving every community free to elaborate its school plans according to its own intelligence and means.

The ideal of American education is to develop the child's powers of mind on broad general lines, and in later years to add the necessary special training for trade or profession. In so developing the thinking of an individual, much has already been done toward educating American citizens beyond intolerance and rationalization. This is necessary if democracy is to succeed as a government of by and for its people.

American education is organized in such a way that it is pleasant to the student in the process of learning. Wide varieties of courses make it possible for the student to pursue the knowledge which will further his abilities in the field for which he is best suited. Organizations have been instituted in the regular curriculum to provide specialized participation in activities which encourage creative ability. Competent sponsors guide the activities of the organizations and contribute much to the development of well-rounded personalities.

There are rich treasures for youth in the educational system of America, but more than that, there are ample opportunities for service. The attitude of an American student should be in harmony with the George Rogers Clark Creed —

*"To the best of our ability we shall endeavor to faithfully serve our school.
Honor and uphold its name.
Strive for high scholarship, citizenship and sportsmanship."*

PRINCIPAL

R. B. Miller

Mr. R. B. Miller has been principal of George Rogers Clark High School ever since it was founded. Though many students pretend a traditional fear of the principal's office, all really know that he is friendly, cooperative, and willing to help.

He is interested in all the activities in which students participate, but he is best known for his deep and sincere interest in the students themselves.

Mrs. Mabel Brown and Miss Julia Dedzisky are the oil that keeps George Rogers Clark High School running smoothly and efficiently. Both students and faculty have come to rely on their quick, dependable service in the office. Ever ready to cooperate and make business easy, they make entering the office a pleasure. Their enthusiasm for Clark compares with that of any student or teacher.

Mr. Claude Sohl

Mr. Lee L. Caldwell, who is the executive head of all schools in Hammond, is known, respected, and looked up to by all George Rogers Clark High School students.

Dr. Clarence McVey, Mr. Charles Scott, Mr. Columbus Smith, Mr. Claude Sohl, and Mr. Clarence Mason are the present Board of School Trustees.

The board is composed of five members who are elected by the people for a four-year term.

Mr. Ralph H. Cox serves students well in his position as personnel director at George Rogers Clark High School. Much credit is due him for his outgoing and unselfish interest in determining the proper course and further education.

PERSONNEL DIRECTOR

Honore Mann once said "Education, then, beyond all other devices of human origin is a great equalizer of the conditions of men — the balance wheel of the social machinery. Education brings equality; equality is the basis of democracy. Hence education is vital, for it brings about democracy. 'The truth shall set you free.' And going one step farther brings us to the teacher — all-important factor in education and to a great extent maker of democracy."

Parents and home naturally influence the lives of American youth greatly but on the other hand that some American youth spends its waking hours at school as he does at home. That great teacher is the influence of the school, and more specifically the teacher on American youth. This influence, whether good or bad, affects American youth directly every day to such an extent that it often changes lives.

Every great teacher has been one who knew and understood people – who not only taught but led his pupils – who set example that it might be easy to learn. And every great teacher has loved his pupils.

"You will be remembered it and such it really let be done and would this hold me on white of them, long and sound mind."

That is it, then the ideal teacher is not only teacher, but counselor, helper, and guide as well. And our teachers at Geneva Rogers Clark meet the challenge. They give not only of their knowledge, but of their time and help generously. They encourage individual expression of opinion, seeking to bring out the best in each student.

School departments are also set up to aid and encourage, to help each student find his own particular niche in the school world. Each department has something to offer toward making a well-rounded and complete education that nurtures and furthers it as far as either as those who first pushed across the American frontier.

The Health Education Department provides opportunities for development of good sportsmanship and a sense of cooperation as well as sound bodies. Here also students learn the rudiments of good health and clean living.

COMPOSITION

The Commercial Department helps students who plan a business career to develop their abilities as business men and women.

The ability to speak, read, and write English correctly is necessary in the daily life of every good American. So we find that to teach students these essentials is one of the basic purposes of the Language Department.

In natural, physical, and mathematical science classes Clark students learn the fundamentals of the world of science and are benefited by them.

Fine, as well as practical art classes give Clark students a real appreciation of the fine things of a fuller life as well as the practical means by which they can be attained.

Social studies too plays a definite role in the balancing of George Rogers Clark High School's curriculum. Herein are taught the basic ideals of democracy and how to live them, as well as the historical background of their development in America.

Senior Class

About to embark on an uncertain road after graduation, the Senior Class of 1942 looks back on its four years of high school and also to the world ahead.

As freshmen the class started its high school career under the capable leadership of Miss Evelyn Carlson, sponsor; Charles Westfall, president; George Hollick, vice-president; John Novotney, secretary, and Stanley Matonovich, treasurer. Full of enthusiasm, the freshmen of 1938-1939 started work on their first social undertaking, "The Polar Bear Fling."

During its sophomore year the class sped right along and started out on the second lap of its high school experience by electing George Hollick, president; Sammy Condes, vice-president; Helen Fagyas, secretary, and Betty Martin, treasurer. As their contribution to the social whirl the sophomores presented the unique and highly successful "Derby."

Throughout the junior year the class was lead by Lawrence Barnes, president; Andrew Dubeck, vice-president; Armina Mitchell, secretary, and Joe Pardek, treasurer.

"June Mad" was selected as the junior play which was successful enough to merit a return performance.

Drawing to the close of the junior year, the class reached the peak of success by presenting the annual junior-senior prom, which that year was called "The Carnival in Pastels."

With the beginning of the senior year it was found that the class took over the leadership of the school in its stride. Officers elected to guide the last year at Clark were Charles Westfall, president; Andrew Dubeck, vice-president; Betty Martin, secretary; and Armina Mitchell, treasurer. Ed Iaknielski was elected president of the student council, the student governing body.

A hilarious farce, "Charley's Aunt," was chosen as the play which the seniors presented; and, as always, the class of '42 had a hit on its hands.

Climaxing the seniors' four years at Clark, the graduation exercises brought to a successful close their high school days. The senior class of 1942 will face the future with the determination which the world's troubled times warrant.

National Honor Society

At the recommendation of an outstanding high school principal, several juniors and seniors are each year selected to join the ranks of the National Honor Society.

Membership in this national organization is based first on scholarship, but being in the upper one-third of the class does not make a student a member of the organization; it merely makes him eligible for membership. Three other qualities — service, leadership, and character — are equally important measures of eligibility when a boy or girl is being considered for election.

Keeping in mind its standards of selection, the Society set up its purpose, which was to further the enthusiasm for excellence in scholarship, to promote outstanding leadership, to develop the highest ideals of character, and to encourage the desire to render service.

When a student reaches a better than average level in scholarship, he is pointing to himself and to the world that he possesses natural ability plus the realization that effort begets results.

The primary response of a leader is his willingness to serve his group, his community, or his nation, according to the best interest of the majority which he has the privilege of guiding.

Above all is the important trait of leadership, a character. No other single factor is so influential in the shaping of an individual's life.

Upper classroom, possessing these four essential qualities were selected to the National Honor Society.

These seniors who had been selected for this organization had year were given the following positions: President, Frank Horbeck; Vice-President, Peggy Kestner; Treasurer, Betty Kestner; Secretary, Charles Westfall; Committee, Virginia Malott; Executive, F. F. F. F.

Junior

Although they are looking forward to their final year at George Rogers Clark School, the juniors are a bit regretful that the end of their high school days is so near at hand.

It seems like yesterday that the class of 1935 was badly afflicted with its last vacation headache. Later in the business year it seemed and felt very successfully its last "Spring Dance."

Sailing smoothly into their sophomore year, the graduates enjoyed everyone with one of the most most and exciting days of the season. The Mexicans. In this way the class added its big interest in the Pan American relations.

Finally the class of '35 arrived at the longest year it was yet to know. The members had become opportunists. How the responsibility seemed million. On Thanksgiving Eve the seniors presented the Turkey Test, their third successful dance. In really giving the normal person plus some extra. The senior play, "Ever Since Eve," provided the entire school with an abundance of comedy and drama. Soon after the play came the senior senior home, which took the talent of the senior school. Finally, the seniors discussed their most important year with the big moment of the school season, the Home Prom. The side affair brought to an end the activities of the junior year of the class of 1935.

Under the capable leadership of John E. Shank, for the term it has been characterized by its record that it has what is necessary to become a really good class. The members who were elected to the various offices were: Harry Sandberg, president; Lawrence Gustafson, vice-president; Margaret Orlund, secretary; Edward Melusko, treasurer.

Sophomore

Familiar with the second year of their high school career are the members of the Sophomore Class. They were ably guided by Mr. Joe W. Griffin, sponsor; Henry Bauer, president; Rudolph Plenich, vice-president; William Trebs, treasurer; Nina Louik, secretary.

Starting off with a bang, the sophomores held a get together party for the freshmen. The party was very well received by the two groups.

Carrying on with the traditions they had laid as freshmen, the sophomores again proved they were a go-getting class by sponsoring a South American tour show "The Romance of Old Mexico" early in the year.

Then taking time out only long enough to taste their plans, steadfast the members of this crop-year class sponsored their annual dance. Apparently because of its date, February 14, the dance was passed this past year, and a great future is expected of this age and coming season of the underclassmen.

"The Valentine Victory Dance." Two featured features of this dance were first the home made movies advertising the dance and second the fact that it was the first sophomore class dance to feature an orchestra.

In 1934, sports it is necessary, mostly for women as a member of their population, a successful record in football, basketball, track and the other sports they set up here at Clark. If girls sports the freshmen generally surpassed the accomplishments of the upperclassmen, as was seen in the numerous exhibits and displays put on by the girls of this class.

In 1934, the freshmen again came through in being largely responsible for the success of sports events. The team sides were held in two fields, more who had the rest through to the finish.

As a fitting climax to their most stirring career as freshmen, the class sponsored the last informal dance of the year, "The Spring Soiree." The entertainment was characteristic of a youth, under party with all the trimmings, including flowers, balloons, rock, limonade and lanterns.

What Americanism Means to Me

All semi-numeral youth in this nation who earnestly desire to become good citizens must have the responsibility of recognizing and understanding the special liberties and privileges granted to all members of the American system. Now when long-established governments are crumbling with astonishing rapidity, we may well wipe the look of ~~any~~ contentment from our faces and do a little deep thinking about the heritage we so thoughtlessly accept.

To me, Americanism symbolizes personal liberty, and here in America personal liberty is more than a mere combination of words; it is a reality. In no other nation than this are the individual and his rights so sacredly guarded, but in addition to that his life has an inestimable value. He is not like the unfortunate Chinese hordes who die off in floods and famines. He is not like the pitiful residents of totalitarian nations whose liberties have been slashed from them by the sword of might and thus have lost the very thing which makes life endurable. America's greatest gift to me—and to the world—is its faith in the individual—a faith staunchly supported by visible documents which forcefully testify to its existence.

The simple American ideals have attracted many of the oppressed from other lands. If the immigrants here had not so completely melted into our union, this might have become a replica of Europe with all its factions energetically fighting one another. Such fortunately was not the case, and with a united spirit America has rapidly grown still retaining the energy and antiquation of youth.

Thus with all its latent energies America can rise to unbounded heights. Its future lies shrouded in the unpredictable cloak of time, but through the dense grayness comes a warning voice that warns: "America must stand as an example to all those nations who pursue courses other than its own; but America must show the same tolerance that it expects, for liberty, equality, and tolerance must forever be the watchwords of Americanism."

Organization

While democracy marches toward an ultimate victory, George Rogers Clark is striving toward the perfection of her ideals. Keeping time with the regular classroom routine are many varied extra-curricular activities, making life full and the future bright and promising.

These activities are of great value because they develop such important qualities as responsibility, honesty, loyalty, leadership, and initiative. Perhaps the most intrinsic value lies in the development of the ability to get along with people. All the hobbies, enthusiasms, and desires of the students are encouraged by a wide range of clubs and organizations. By entering wholeheartedly into the most personally inviting activities, a student may be insured against a bleak future. For extra-curricular participation aims toward versatility and widespread knowledge.

Surely George Rogers Clark has a broad field from which to choose one's favorite activities. There are clubs that further classroom work — such as Biology, Latin, or Chemistry Club; there are clubs that have the development of Christian character as their goal; there are clubs that pursue hobbies; clubs that follow the great arts of painting, music, and poetry; and there are clubs for practical American purposes.

Forever the home of freedom of choice, America has provided the liberty of choosing one's own outside activities. Student participation encourages a democratic cooperation. Working on the basic principle of closer relationships with classmates, clubs endeavor to develop unity through friendship and working together. In our extra-curricular activity program here at Clark, an effective and individual democracy exists, giving us an American foundation for future building. Here at George Rogers Clark, students work wholeheartedly at contributing their personality and labor to the organizations that they have founded, built, and are now supporting.

More important than ever in these trying times was the Junior Red Cross Council. In this its country's hour of need the council came forth with vigor and energetic help.

Having affiliated itself with the National Red Cross Council, the junior organization under the direction of Mrs. Vera Walden, began its task of collecting waste materials such as collapsible metal tables, coat hangers, tin foil, razor blades, and paper.

Classes in knitting, home sewing, and first aid were instituted.

As in former years, contributions of food, candy, and magazines were presented to the residents of the state poor farm at Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter.

Officers of the organization were Dorothy Porter, president; Orlie Hedert, vice-president; Bill Rader, secretary; treasurer.

the season of giving.

Each week the Girl Reserves do their part in bringing Christmas tidings to the people of the city. In a body they went out caroling to Merce and to the hospital. Thus they spread good cheer to the people who were not able to get out.

Each week the girls of the different groups would come in this manner they found the means to promote the different undertakings. This was also the way in which they raised the money to donate to the Community Chest. The girls presented to the library. However, because of the sale of defective books and stories, to which they had to set down considerable on their candy sale.

Besides the regular meetings of the club the members enjoyed most such Moppy with the other two schools. Hammond High and Hammond Tech and discussed the problems of the organization.

As a whole the club had a very successful year and should be proud of the things which were accomplished.

The officers of the club were Helen Lagyas, president; Shirley Werner, vice-president; Vera Kre, secretary; Helen Nicholson, treasurer; Alice Nelson and Jeanette Campbell were the members-at-large.

Patrol Boys

The duties of the patrol boys consisted of helping errand children cross the street safely, patrolling the halls at noon, and helping to maintain order at football games.

The boys were out on their copies regardless of weather conditions and were in this way a great help to the community.

At the beginning of the year the boys elected a captain to preside at their meetings. This office was the most important one in the patrol and was capably filled by John Beno. The other office was held by Neal Cresswell, secretary-treasurer. There was no vice-president.

Patrol meetings were held regularly and problems of the patrol were discussed.

Among the social events of the season were a croquet program tournament, a basketball tournament and a polo. Chasman program player and Steven Arnold, who defeated Mr. Mullins, the favorite. However, the latter had the consolation of being second.

Two basketball champions saw the sixth patrol boys who defeated the fourth patrol boys in the final game of the tournament.

Mr. Mullins was the capable supervisor of the safety patrol.

Service Club

Democracy — as ideals and its meaning — can be written about, talked about, but nothing can better express its underlying essence than unselfish service. The very heart of Democracy is kept alive by this spirit of service. To give willingly and gladly of one's time without thought of compensation or showy praise constitutes one of the great ideals of a free country.

The primary roots of this country drew their initial nourishment from the great storehouse of willing service built up by our first patriots. If the chief thought of those men had been for themselves instead of for an ideal, there would be no America today to talk about to read about to sing about. If they had not translated their ideals into active freely given service this nation would still be striving to piece itself together. Washington with his Continental Army and the Minute Men placed the welfare of the thirteen colonies above his own interests. Today's citizens and students are eagerly following in the footsteps of their ancestors.

The Service Club at Clark was made up of students who volunteered to work with the children in the elementary grades.

One purpose of having this club was to supervise the noon hour of lunch pupils in the elementary grades. This supervision began in the lunch room when the children ate and it was carried on either in the library or in the gym until classes were resumed in the afternoon.

The club being new had to have very good sponsors. They came in the form of Miss Ellen Viney and Mr. Howard Stevenson. Both of these faculty members were highly interested in a supervised noon hour for the elementary students and the credit for this club's success should go to them.

The G.A.C. and the Girl Reserves were both solicited for girls to volunteer for the Service Club. Those girls were then given a chance to choose whether they wanted to work in the library or gym and they were also allowed to select the group with which they desired to work. The boys volunteered because they had heard about the organization and were interested in it.

Although it was a club there were no officers and no regular meetings. The meetings were called when the members felt one was necessary. At such meetings discussions were carried on about matters that would naturally arise when work such as this is being carried on.

Student Council

The governing body of the school started off in a new but not fall with Edward Jakubicki pre- sident, Richard Leonard vice-president, Virginia Mitchell secretary, Bessie Pappas treasurer.

The members of the council were chosen according to the regular procedure, home room balloting, thus making sure that the council members were the students' choice.

In the past the council was composed of various committees such as assembly, magnavox and locker committee, but this system has since been eliminated and now all school problems go directly to the entire council for consideration.

The club sponsored several very interesting assem- blies including a movie featuring the Life of Abraham Lincoln and an entertaining lecture on prison ex- periences as related by Rev. Robert L. Hall, chaplain at Michigan City State Prison. Another assembly of exceptional interest to the students was the lecture and moving tape China. This proved particularly valu- able to those who follow current events.

The purpose in sponsoring such assemblies was to earn money for the scholarship letters which are purchased annually to honor students. By charging a small fee for admission to assemblies, the money was obtained.

Representatives from the club were also chosen to attend the student conference at Anderson, In- diana. The reports that they brought back concerning the various councils and extra-curricular activities of different schools furnished interesting discussion matter.

Discussions in council meetings consisted mainly of problems that presented themselves during the school term. Actual practice drills provided an im- portant topic in the discussions held last semester.

The Student Council acted as a representative of the students in accordance with the American ideals of equal and free representation. It served the students and acted as a sounding board for their desires and opinions. The Council also served as the connecting link between faculty, executives and students.

Orchestra

Throughout this year the orchestra has developed significantly under the expert direction of Mr. Daren Day, both in expanding its number of players and in taking more advanced music within its scope.

Additional members included those from the elementary and senior high schools as well as senior high pupils who showed sufficient ability on a prior test.

All six visited the orchestra, which is still relatively new in comparison with the other musical ensembles of the school, were amazed at the instrumentation it had and were impressed by its more balanced instrumentation brought about through brass and three cellists in contrast to the previous years' lack in those sections.

One of the chief high-lights of the operetta, Ukranian, was the orchestral accompaniment for the gypsy dances and Franz Liszt's songs. The orchestra also provided music for "Ever Since Eve" and "Chopin's Aria," the junior and senior plays.

On particular note were the concert which was 1999) in the International Music Postcard and the Idiom were played as well as the two concerts presented in the hall and again in the future departments of Chok. In addition, the festival was very much in evidence at contemporary

It is obvious that the year 1941-1942 was one of brilliant triumphs and accomplishment for the First and the entire orchestra. Maternal encouragement was supplemented by a deeper appreciation of life, music, and a personal enjoyment of participation which will undoubtedly grow stronger during future years.

It was generally agreed that Clark's orchestra had come into its own and because of its recently improved performance showed promise of being bigger and better than ever in the years to come.

Since the orchestra as yet did not have its own woodwind and brass players, such players from the band as were requisite played with the orchestra regularly and in all public performances both within school and elsewhere.

Glee Club

The Girls' Glee Club reached a new peak in membership last season, topping all previous records. To limit the number in the club the members were chosen on a selective basis after tryouts had been held. In this way a more balanced group was hoped to be obtained.

Though the Glee Club was only an extracurricular activity, it was one of the most prominent organizations in the school, mainly because of the large number of active students involved in it and the genuine interest displayed in its organization by the student body. Faculty and students alike appreciated the beauty of its music and the work put forth by its members.

The club was organized for the purpose of broadening musical appreciation and through hard work it met with success in reaching this goal. The club was formerly the only one in the school which offered opportunities for group singing. Recently other groups have begun to share the field and sing the praises everywhere.

A few of the girls' favorite selections were "Ram in October," "Ode to the Cheerful Host," and "Two Hearts."

The club sang in the annual commercial exercises at the end of the school term. It also sang in the May Festival in Hammond with the combined high school groups of Hammond.

All the vocal groups at Clark were led and directed by Miss Bernice Ferns, who worked diligently and graciously to achieve the goal of musical appreciation set by the club.

The groups are playing a very important part in the present day, for their task is to raise the morale of the people and keep it high.

Chorus, Trio, Duo

New heights were achieved by the Girls' Chorus during the past season. It made some appearances last at any other time in its past career.

This organization practiced three times a week during a regular class period, and was thus able to accomplish a great deal. Its faithful diligence in the study of voice harmony, this Chorus stimulated its members.

The girls entertained the student body at several assemblies and delighted radio listeners with the programs they presented over WROB.

Selected from the members of the Chorus and the Glen Club was the Triple Trio, which consisted of three girls who showed outstanding ability in their work.

These girls sang in band concerts, P.T.A. and D.A.R. meetings and at other events.

Although the boys of the school were represented only by the Boys' Duo, they were represented very well and very harmoniously.

Miss Jeannette Ferris was in charge of these organizations.

Chemistry Club

Although there had been Chemistry Clubs at Clark before, this year's club was the first to be nationally affiliated with the Science Club of America. This affiliation brought with it the added features of Chemistry Club pins and a membership charter. The membership pins were presented to the club during an impressive candle-light ceremony earlier in the year. Preceding the presentation Miss Vera McAttee, head of the science department and sponsor of the club, spoke about the solemnity of the occasion.

Membership in the club was held only by chemistry students whose grades averaged "C" or above. In addition, students qualifying for membership could retain that membership only if they could present legitimate excuses for any two consecutive meetings missed or for absence from three meetings at random.

The purpose for the founding of this organization was to stimulate a further interest in chemistry; to promote and encourage the high ideals of scientific endeavor; and to provide the time, opportunity, and facilities for students to pursue any special type of interest that they might have had in any of the countless fields of chemical research and experimentation.

Meetings of the club were held twice a month, once during the extra-curricular period of the first Tuesday of the month and once during the evening of the last Thursday.

Throughout the year programs presented at the meetings were varied and informational. Outside speakers performed demonstrations and spoke on the timely topic of war gases. Also included in the programs were student demonstrations, the presentation of a radio script, and motion pictures on pertinent subjects.

During the earlier part of the school year a complete reorganization of the club was undertaken at which time the officers elected were Laura Durand, president; Bob Adams, vice-president; Betty Kortz, secretary; treasurer; Betty Moore, program chair.

Biology

The Biology Club was formed for students of the biology classes.

The purpose of the club was twofold: in the primary setting of demonstrations and discussions with the other students and to enable students to gain a better understanding of some of the phases of matter. The members also made various projects.

Membership was limited to the A and B honor students of the biology classes. Meetings were held on Thursdays after school.

Miss Lyle led the club through a successful year which was climaxed with a radio broadcast.

The officers were Barbara Argus, president; Chelo Herbol, vice-president; George French, secretary.

Stamp Club

For those students who had an active interest in stamp collecting, this club was instituted.

Most of the meetings were spent in trading stamps, although from time to time reports were given, playing around, stress on the fact that stamps from countries which no longer exist were equally good in value.

The Shuang Chiao did something this year that it has never done before—instead of leaving membership in the club open to high school students only, it allowed the younger students who showed an interest in the profitable hobby to join. Mr. Griffin was the sponsor, and many of these youngsters start by furnishing their own several hundred dollars' worth of money and things.

The students who were elected as officers of the club were Martha Labadie, president; Russell Wickford, vice-president; Harry Sinden, secretary.

Forum Club

Freedom of speech shall be practiced at every and every meeting. No one need or has the slogan of the Forum Club. Any student could say what he pleased about the subjects under discussion and could maintain his own stand on any point even though everyone else disagreed with him. Many times a member would be the only one to advance a position, be theory, yet no one would think of denying the right to defend his opinion.

Discussions throughout the year were led by the students themselves. In this manner students have often turned themselves of an extremely complex. Also not only was it beneficial to the student in charge, but it helped other members of the club in discussion. One of the policies of the Forum Club was to have the members interrupt the speaker to ask questions and for authority or unusual presented or to disagree with an issue. Even for both, and many students hesitated to do this when the speaker was an adult. While under motion the student felt more at ease.

Anyone was welcome at the meetings of the club.

Whether he was a member or not, if someone happened to be just passing by and thought that he would like to see what went on in this type of organization, he would probably have been impressed after he had taken his seat to have the speaker ask for his opinion on the topic under discussion. Perhaps that person was even more surprised when after he had given his opinion, several others rose up either in agreement or disagreement and say he was as the midst of a heavy discussion, taking part just as if he were a member. This has happened at many Forum meetings.

Club work in the Forum Club was not only opportunities for people to study to discuss a problem together, but was also a symbol of democracy. The citizens of the United States need more free education as long as there are such clubs.

Officers of the club, which was under the sponsorship of Mr. Joseph W. Lark, were Jane Colburn, president; Peggy Jane Kestler, vice-president; Helen Feggen, secretary-treasurer.

"It is well for our land that we of that generation have learned to think rationally."
 — Theodore Roosevelt

Midst the chaos of a world at war, Clark's debaters were faced against the all-important question of preparedness — "Resolved: That as a permanent policy every able-bodied male citizen of the United States shall be required to have one year full-time compulsory military training before attaining the present adult age."

Evidently the senior debate team was quite prepared. For the team annexed the LaPorte Tournament, the Sectional Debate title, the Metropolitan League title, and climaxed these victories with the Indiana State National Forensic League championship. This championship, the second in eight years, made the team eligible to enter the National Tournament, which was canceled because of the war.

The high spot of the season was the defeat of Hammond High School in the final round of the N.F.L. tournament.

This year's schedule was particularly difficult since the senior team engaged in a total of seventy debates. This season was complicated with rounds and heats of the debaters won.

This was the most outstanding record ever attained by any debate team in the history of Carmel Union High School, and particular credit is due Miss Laura School, varsity debate coach.

The members of the 1941-1942 team were Russell, Thwing, first affirmative; Charles Westfall, second affirmative; Jeanne Bates, first negative; Glenna Lauer, first negative alternate; Adele Kaplan, second negative.

Clark's freshmen and sophomore debaters, under the leadership of Mr. Joe Carlin, began their debate experience by attending the Purdue Conference and by having an exchange of debates with Washington, Hammond and Thornton Fractional high schools.

They completed their speech season by engaging in individual speech work in which they were particularly outstanding.

The Latin Clubs

In the Latin Club each class acted as a representative. The purpose of the club was to give the members an acquaintance with the Romans as a people, and to teach them about the Romans' contributions to language and customs.

At the end of the school year a banquet was held in the Latin style. The advanced Latin club chose some games, and the beginning students acted as their players for the event.

The presidents of the two beginning clubs and the two advanced clubs, respectively, were George French, Roly Plench, Don Caldwell, and Allen Franklin. Miss Evelyn Carlson, who taught all the classes, sponsored the groups.

French Club

Learning to speak French fluently was a serious problem with the members of the French class at the beginning of the school year. They wanted to know the French language and what was more important the members desired to interpret without much difficulty what was said to them in French. These two goals were set up when the clubs were organized and, while they may not have been achieved, at least a good start was made toward accomplishing them. Perhaps more can be done in the future.

Regular classes in French tried to achieve the goals which the students had set for themselves, but this was not enough. The students desired to organize French clubs, les cercles Françaises, and learn in the spur of the moment to fit the occasion supplemented the conventional mode of translating through actual use in speaking. Conversations made sentences in class work. Playing games, singing songs and just talking all aided in solving this problem for every word had to be in French.

A better understanding of not only the language but also the French people was achieved through these conversations. Reports were given about the geography of France both physically and climatically. There were also discussions based chiefly on the customs of the people before the downfall of France. For little is known of their present mode of life. The downfall and the given history up to it made an interesting discussion for one of the meetings. All programs were prepared by the students themselves. They were held once a month in order not to take up valuable time outside of school hours or during extra-curricular periods, the meetings were held during the class period on the last Friday afternoon of each month.

The officers of the advanced group were: Inez Sheets, president; Jack Hearn, vice-president; Betty Sanders, secretary; treasurer.

Evelyn Sabol, president; Frances Maman, vice-president; Edward Matusek, secretary; treasurer were the leaders of the first-year club.

Library Club

The Library Club was made up of students who worked in the library.

The most important purposes of this organization were to:

(1) Teach students the use of library books and show them the wide resources in reference material in order that they might acquire a knowledge of books.

(2) Aid to the efficiency of the school library by providing capable help in the performance of routine duties, thus giving the librarian more time for the professional aspects of her work.

This year's officers were: president, Melba Lauer; vice-president, Betty Martin; secretary, Ruth Keldner; treasurer, Glenna Lauer.

The club sponsor was Miss Harnet Lake, the librarian.

Poetry Club

With one of the largest memberships in the club's history, the Poetry Club finished another successful year.

Under the sponsorship of Miss Carolyn Lamborn, the club held twenty different types of meetings, seeking to have poetry of a kind which every member enjoyed.

Some of the most interesting meetings were spent in listening to recitals of poets reading their own works, and in reading original student poetry.

Officers of this year's club were Peggy Keeling, president; Marilyn Malloy, vice-president; Dorothy Davis, secretary-treasurer. The program committee consisted of three girls: Dorothea Smith, Laraine Boness, and Betty Sanders.

A large group of students, both male and female, are gathered around a long table in a classroom or workshop. They are focused on a project. In the center of the table is a large, white, rectangular object that looks like a model or a sign. It has the words "Let's Build a Better World" printed on it. The students are dressed in casual attire typical of the mid-20th century. The background shows a wall with several framed pictures or posters. The overall atmosphere is one of collaborative learning and creative activity.

The purpose of the Art Club has always been to stimulate development of art in school. There were many students who had the ability to draw and sketch but never had time to take a course in art. With the new system they were able to attend meetings, exercise their artistic abilities and still do the school work that was required of them.

At the beginning of each year, members paid their dues of a quarter and usually took a trip to the Art Institute of Chicago. Art week to that way was made more interesting to the members of the club.

At the beginning of each year, members paid increased so that it had to be divided into two groups: the freshman-sophomore and the junior-senior groups. On alternating Tuesdays they met at extra-curricular period. During that time the members observed dollies made portraits of each other and fashioned costume jewelry. They also assisted in making decorations for the dances of the season.

Officers of the freshman-sophomore group were: Christanthi Condes, president; Georgia Pappas, vice president; Georgia Condes, secretary; Dorothy Collins, treasurer. Those elected to lead the junior-senior section were Corliss Gidding, president; Paul Gebba, vice president; Rose Marie Vateskay, secretary; Anne Kokajak, treasurer. Both groups were sponsored by Mrs. Helen Del Porto.

Because of the accomplishments of the past and those that will come in the future the Art Club won't the approval of the students. Perhaps a member who has taken advantage of the opportunities of the club will make an important contribution to the Art of America. The pioneers of today are the founders of tomorrow's art and culture.

Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club was one of the largest clubs in school and also one of the oldest. It was composed of students interested in acting and all phases of stage work.

At their meetings the students presented radio skits, dramatic readings and short plays. All of the dramatic presentations given by this organization were directed by the student dramatists. The students also had charge of their own costumes and properties.

Plays were given by the club for assemblies and special occasions. At one of the former they presented the patriotic three-act play "We Hold Those Truths" with Marilyn Jordan, Bernard Salgia, Edwin Coddington, and Edward Matulka in the leading roles.

During their latest year they gave the hilarious comedy, "Thanks A-Goddy". The leading characters in the play were portrayed by Bob Vogel, Joyce Polack, George Polack, Nelson, Lari and Margaret Johnson.

A party brought them into winter time to a show. This club was led through its highly successful year under the capable direction of its student Manager, Nelson.

Officers of the club for the present year were Paula Nelson, president and Helen Laguer, secretary.

Through work in the Dramatic Club students gain practical experience for a possible future in dramatics or stage work.

Stage Production Staff

Experiments on the monetary number of organizations within and outside of the industrial zone and the same facilities at one time or another, it was found necessary to have a staff of competent and dependable students who could operate their facilities for the organizations. In the past years all of the work was done by three or four boys.

The staff, consisting of about eighty members, was under the direction of the staff adviser, Miss Emma Schad and Mr. H. B. Miller and the stage manager, George French. The staff was divided into six departments — staging, publicity, property, crew, costume, lighting effects and radio.

When a major production was going, the staff helped the sponsoring organization prepare its program. Over fifty children organizations used the stage facilities this year. The staff helped in the preparation of assemblies, radio broadcasts, movies, and plays.

The motto of the Stage Production Staff was Service. To show merit in this organization stage awards will be awarded after two years of service as an active member.

Meetings were held weekly at which time committee programs and other problems are discussed.

Pioneer News

Under the leadership of Max W. Beale, sponsor the Pioneer News staff endeavored to bring to Rogers Clark School the most important and interesting news in the best possible form.

Published weekly the Pioneer News was the main activity in school which existed by giving the time and effort to the other clubs and organizations.

Since the size of the publication had to be cut from six to four pages this year because of the war, the staff had to work doubly hard to include everything of importance in school life.

Not only did this year's staff publish school news of interest to the students, but it was also in complete cooperation with the government by publishing articles of interest and value about civilian responsibilities and activities during the war.

From the beginning of the school year to the end of the school year the Pioneer News gave more than just the news coverage of clubs, class activities, plays, assemblies, concerts, and sports; it gave the students entertainment. A full page of the newspaper was devoted to feature material every week.

Members of the staff have been hard and conscientious workers on this project, but their efforts have not been in vain. For the students as a whole look forward each Thursday morning to the delivery of their Pioneer News.

Radio Club

The Radio Club ranked with the finest clubs in this school. It was firmly established, had efficient leadership and offered more opportunities to the average student than other organizations on the same basis.

Mr. Wilkinson was the able sponsor. He knows radio and he wanted the club members to know it too. At that time the learning of the International Morse Code was the main activity.

The fundamental purpose of the club, to aid students in becoming amateur radio operators, furthered the ideals of free expression in America. In some countries of Europe broadcasting of this type is done only in secret.

The officers for the past year were Bob Kilduski president; Norbert Muldoon vice president; John Elmovic secretary; Donald Bauer treasurer.

Aeronautical Club

The growing emphasis that modern life places upon the importance of aviation in a rapidly advancing world has proportionately increased an interest in this field for boys of all ages.

The Aeronautical Club was started at the request of several students who felt that such an organization would be an outlet for the energies of aerial minded boys in the school.

Activities of the club have in the past been chiefly concerned with model construction and group discussion.

With Mr. John Shanklin as its sponsor the club chose for its officers this year Rudolph Gandy president; George Plumb vice president; Norbert Muldoon, secretary-treasurer.

Establishment of New Frontiers

My dear Sir,
I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 10th inst. in relation to the matter of the proposed purchase of the land for the proposed building of a new church for the congregation of the First Baptist Church of New York City, and in reply to inform you that the same has been referred to the Board of Directors of the said church, and that they have decided to purchase the same for the purpose of building a new church for the congregation of the said church.

Yours truly,
— Alfred D. Jones

Sports

In the true spirit of democracy, there is no restriction of free competition, the right to compete in all sports open to one another. It is this right, this freedom, which usually vanishes into our lives. Without this right, we would live in an atmosphere of lethargy and boredom. An integral part of human desire would be missing, for competition is one of our most powerful drives. It is the spice of life.

In the execution of this right the Fighting Pioneer sought new honors and glories in their adventures in the world of athletics. In some fields of sports the Pioneer realized their dreams, in others their hopes were frustrated, but the valuable experience gained and the lessons of give-and-take which they learned will be in their ultimate advantage.

Pyrrhic the lid off the Clark sports' activities, the Fighting Pioneer Eleven entered its first year of N.H.S.C. play only to terminate the season with a rather poor record.

Clark's cross country team took the field against conference and non-conference opponents to work up a very good record.

Next in the sports' schedule came the Pioneer wrestling team which claimed two state championships in addition to placing in the upper bracket in the state wrestling meet, and ending the season with a record of over 700.

Commencing the basketball season with a live-gone losing streak and then coming back to an amazing finish, the youthful Fighting Pioneer cage team reached the East Chicago sectional finals and was finally stopped by Remond.

Clark's track team, although without a more-than-impressive record, headed several outstanding runners, one of whom broke a record which he had previously set twice within one week.

Due to present prevailing conditions the Pioneer baseball squad was disbanded after one year of competition.

Gridiron Greats

Being unfitted into the western domain of the Northern Indiana High School Conference was a minor matter, did not simply matters for Coach Arvo Anttila's varsity eleven as it tolled through a six game conference schedule and one non-conference game taking but one conference and the only one into the loop game.

Clark's gridiron started the season by playing Washington to a drawlock and they looked as if they would improve as the season progressed. Roomed white-washed the Pioneers in the next encounter and Tech defeated Clark for its first win over a Pioneer squad in the school's athletic history.

Encouraged to shake off the ill luck which had been plaguing them, they traveled to Decatur, a large central-Indiana city, and defeated the Decatur High Reds to register their initial seasonal triumph.

Returning to league warfare, strengthened by the thought of a past victory, the Pioneers met Hammond but were disposed of in usual fashion by the Wild cats.

Probably the greatest disappointment to Coach Anttila's protégés was the cancelling of the scheduled Fort Wayne Central-Clark battle, which was to have been played in Fort Wayne. A 500 mile bus ride was all the boys derived from the trip, for soon fell or broke throughout the day and night.

"Sweet revenge was Whiting's lot as they dealt a stunning 10-0 defeat to Clark in the annual season-outstanding and covered the score with the Pioneers, by subject them out in the previous year's defeat.

Coach Harold Red Zimmer of Springfield, Ohio, and 1940 graduate of Indiana University made his debut as the Clark backfield mentor.

Clark's reserve grid squad had a fairly successful season by winning three contests while losing one and tying two.

Even more brilliant was the record which the freshmen-sophomore boys sported. They won six out of ten and tied two.

Hardwood Heroes

Captain Ed Shick's second concern of plucky, youthful Pioneer cagers fought their way through the ranks of the Indiana High School Conference Western Division for the first time and finished the season with a record of seven wins, eight losses to capture the seventh ring in the conference ladder. Clark had a season's total of nine wins, nine losses, recording four non-conference tilts while losing one to even accounts and hold a 500 rating.

Five consecutive defeats were handed to Shick's charges before the surging fighting Pioneers broke into the win column, but that victory will live for ever in the memory of all rabid loyal Clark fans for it was the Pioneers' first cage win over Hammond High. The score, 35-28. The date, January 2, 1942. It was in this epic battle that Captain Ed Jakubicki suffered a recurrence of his hip injury, incurred in a previous season and was forced to abandon his fan base permanently. Richard Leonard, stellar Pioneer guard, succeeded Jake as captain.

Success came to Clark as the season progressed. The Pioneers defeated Tech, Whiting, Roosevelt and repeated in their second tilt with Hammond High.

Clark reached the finals in the East Chicago Sectional by virtue of defeating Tech in the semi-finals but the all too eager Pioneers proved to be no match for the determined Roosevelt squad who dominated the weary, battle-scarred Shickians. The Clark team had poured too much of its effort into the Tech clash.

By defeating the Tech Tigers in the semi-finals, the Pioneers gained undisputed possession of the city cage, won the first such distinction ever held by a team wearing the colors of blue and white.

Under the direction of Coach Harold Zimmerman the Settlers Clark's B squad had a season's record of six wins, eleven losses. The freshmen squad, under the supervision of Coach Arvo Anttila, won two games and lost ten.

Minor Sports

And the "forgotten men" are members of minor sports teams in prep athletic circles. Fans loudly acclaim feats of the major teams as they push on to victory, but such is not the case with the minor sports athletes. Their followers are few, their work long and hard, their reward victory.

Leading minor sports at Clark consisted of cross-country, wrestling, track and baseball.

Coach Paul Wilkinson's cross-country squad, operating as two separate units, the senior group composed of juniors and seniors and the junior group, consisting of freshmen and sophomores, established a record of six wins and seven losses and seven victories against two defeats, respectively.

Clark's senior harriers captured seventh place in the N.H.S.C., while the junior squad reigned as champion.

Captain Joe Pikach was voted the most valuable asset to his team by his team-mates and received the "C" Club award in recognition of his services.

Teams which the Pioneer harriers competed against were Kankakee, Culver Military Academy, Horace Mann, Emerson, Wirt and Edison of Gary, Lew Wallace, Roosevelt and Washington of East Chicago, Hammond High, and Hobart.

Boasting two state champions in Dick Eggers, heavyweight and Helmut Becker, 165 lb. class, Coach Wayne Cunningham's wrestling squad finished the season with a record of six wins and five defeats, winding up in fourth place in the N.H.S.C. and placing sixth in the state meet at Bloomington.

Led by Captain William Bennett, the grapplers met Hammond High, Roosevelt, South Bend Central, Washington of East Chicago, Southport, and Thornton Fractional.

Captain-elect Dick Eggers was voted the most valuable wrestler by his mates. Dick coasted through much of his bouts, ending the season with an undefeated record of nine wins and no defeats for a total of 45 points.

Other leading records were as follows: Captain William Bennett, eight wins, one loss, a total of 28 points; Bob Canner, seven wins, two losses, a total of 27 points; Helmut Becker, five wins, one loss, a total of 25 points; Tom Wagner, six wins, three losses, a total of 22 points; Joe Marchak, six wins, two losses, a total of 20 points; and Richard Kender, four wins, four losses, and one tie, a total of 19½ points. Total points scored by the Pioneer grapplers were 211½ to their opponents' 161½ points.

With the advent of spring track made its appearance. When first call for candidates was issued, a total of 60 boys reported to Coach Cunningham. Of this number, a total of 55 boys remained on the roster.

Only four lettermen returned to track warfare this season. Three of the lettermen were seniors, the other a junior. The remainder of the squad was composed mainly of freshmen and sophomores.

A woeful lack of field event participants contributed to the poor showing of the endemics, but the sparkling running of the veterans kept the Pioneers in the running.

Alex Richwalski, a senior hurdles specialist, within the space of one week shattered his high hurdles mark of 16.5 and 15.7 seconds, respectively, to establish a 15.6 seconds record. Alex received the most valuable player award. Joe Pikach placed fourth in the half-mile at the state meet.

Many an aspiring major league baseball star was jubilant last year when it was announced that baseball would be added to the Clark sports schedule. Under the direction of Coach Ed Shields, the first Pioneer nine played a fourteen game schedule. Their record for the season was four wins and eleven defeats, but the Pioneers reigned jointly with Hammond Tech as city co-champions.

Because of an increase in cost of baseball equipment and the scarcity of raw materials, it became necessary to withdraw baseball from the sports calendar this year. This ban may apply for the duration of the present situation.

Minor sports have a definite place in the athletic activities of a high school, Clark not excepted. Their contribution is just as important as any major sport can be. The fact that their activities do not bring funds into the athletic treasury is secondary reasoning.

The prime purpose of minor sports, as well as major sports, is to develop the players and participants both mentally and physically.

In these trying times, it is doubly important that our nation's youth be healthy; thus we can realize the need for more athletic activities, large and small.

Girls Sports

International girls' sports at Clark dealt with four major two items and several unorganized athletics. Sponsored basketball, volleyball, and softball composed the major sport schedule.

Girls active in the minor sports of ping-pong and boxing entered the State Telegraphic Tournament. Individual scores were sent by telegraph to the tournaments headquarters in Indianapolis for consideration. Unorganized athletics consisted of hiking, skating, football, soccer and others.

To Help Light Your Path to Success

Students everywhere are finding that lessons can be mastered more quickly when there's a certified I.E.S. Specification Lamp to help them with their homework. Reading's done more easily, quickly, and accurately. Facts are remembered better. There's less unconscious straining to see, and eyes are thus protected from unnecessary fatigue due to poor lighting.

A nationally famous professional group of lighting engineers, the Illuminating Engineering Society, drew up specifications for these lamps which are now made by many manufacturers. Look for the certification tag of approval identifying I.E.S. Lamps.

Whatever the style of your desk or study table at home, you can find an I.E.S. Lamp to suit it beautifully. There are table, floor, and bridge types . . . some of the latter with a handy swing arm to adjust perfectly over a drawing board or sewing table. Ask for I.E.S. Lamps to make your seeing easier . . . and to help light your path to success.
